

2014 Passing Time Red Mountain Cabernet Sauvignon

Passing Time

A Cabernet Sauvignon Dry Red Table wine from USA, Yakima Valley, Columbia Valley, Washington, USA

Source	Reviewer	Rating	Maturity	Current (Release) Cost
eRobertParker.com #225 Jun 2016	Jeb Dunnuck	(94-96)	Drink: N/A	(75)

A sensational-looking barrel sample that tastes like the essence of Red Mountain, the full-bodied, structured 2014 Red Mountain Cabernet Sauvignon possesses a savory, mineral-drenched bouquet of red and black currants, chocolate, black cherries and graphite. As is always the case with the top wines from this appellation, this is backwards and reticent, and will reward 4-5 years of cellaring.

A joint venture between football stars Damon Huard and Dan Marino, these terrific Cabernets are made by Chris Peterson at his Avennia winery. The change in 2014 was the decision to focus on appellation specific wines, and they've moved from a single Cabernet Sauvignon to three different cuvees: one from Walla Walla, one from Red Mountain and one from Horse Heaven Hills.

Add to Print List